Security company nabs copper wire thieves

Recent officials from Kill Crime Security company that provides security services to Maluti-a-Phofung Municipality, have helped to thwart attempts by thugs trying to steal copper cables from a transformer situated near the main road, on the way to the Sports Complex of the Free State campus.

Mofokeng said their security officers were patrolling the substations and transformers in that area when they saw people running away from the transformer at around nine in the evening.

On their arrival they found a pick, a cellphone, two small bags containing a jacket and a side cutter. All the items found at the scene were given to the Phuthaditjhaba SAPS.

In another incident, during the early hours of 19 November, Kill Crime Security officials arrested two criminals who were trying to steal copper cable at another substation situated in the Industrial Area, Qwaqwa. According to Mofokeng, there were five people trying to steal

Thugs steal electricity cables in Qwaqwa

The Central Business District (CBD) of Qwaqwa, Setsing Shopping Centre and other parts of Phuthaditjhaba Location were left without electricity for days because criminals stole electricity cables from one of the mini-substations situated near Setsing Shopping Centre. This mini-substation distributes electricity to the above areas.

Director of Public Safety in Maluti-a-Phofung Municipality Mahidi Matjele said private security officers have been hired by the municipality to patrol the substations of Qwaqwa, (due to allegations that there are people disconnecting electricity intentionally to make the community protest against the municipality).

Last Thursday evening, security officers arrived at the mini-substation for their routine patrolling work during the night. They discovered that there was a hole in the fence that surrounds the substation. When they went inside the fence to inspect, three people ran away.

According to Matjele, they chased the criminals but could not catch them. On their return the security officers found that metres of electricity cable has been cut using a hacksaw, which was found at the substation.

"No ordinary person without expertise in electricity could disconnect the mini-substation," said Matjele.

He added that since the beginning of this month, the municipality has spent millions of rands fixing the electricity around Qwaqwa where thugs have stolen electricity cables.

"We want our community to stand together in fighting the criminals that are hampering electricity delivery," said Matjele.

According to Matjele, the municipality has opened 18 cases of theft from mini-substations. He said cable theft or damages could be as high as R30 million. Matjele appealed to the community to inform the police about the theft of electricity cables.

Women Security Guards plough back

Kill Crime Security Company donated food parcels to Itsoseng Self-Help Organization for Disabled Children last Saturday.

According to Security Officer Matseko Mokoena, women who are security officers decided to end Women's Month on a high note by making a difference in other people's lives especially disabled children.

"We decided to visit this organization, because it is taking care of disabled children. It was so touching when the founder of the organization, Marriam Matjele briefed us about her journey with these children," said Mokoena. Itsoseng currently cares for 25 children.

Marriam Matjele thanked Kill Crime Security Company for their contribution to the centre.

Feeding the hungry

Kill Crime Security Company's Operational Manager Setumo Mofokeng said that when their staff are working in 1st Industrial or 2nd Industrial area in Qwaqwa, they see unemployed people looking for work.

As a company they decided to give these people soup and bread because many are looking for a job on an empty stomach.

According to Mofokeng, some people spend the whole day sitting at 'piece' job pick-up points or looking for work. When these people saw the security company car offloading pots they rushed over and were grateful to receive free soup and bread.
